Cannon Financial Institute adds Certified Special Needs Planner™ School

Athens, GA, April 2009 — The CSNP™ is the first designation to prepare advisors to encompass the full range issues that can arise in the organization of trusts for families with special needs. Establishing a special needs trust is one of the best strategies in providing financial security for persons with a disability and/or victims of personal injury. A well-drafted SNT makes it possible to set aside funds – such as a gift, inheritance, or a legal settlement – for a disabled or injured person without jeopardizing that person's current or future government (Federal and State) benefits.

Cannon Financial Institute has over forty years of practical financial and trust training experience which enables us to offer the Special Needs School, training advisors to educate and guide families through the planning process, ultimately providing them with peace of mind. This course is presented in association with the Academy of Special Needs Planning, and its founder, William Parker, a nationally recognized expert in the area of special needs planning, and the father of three special needs children.

This Course will be taught at our Kingston Plantation School, October 18-21, 2009
